Court Departments

Court Operational Changes

Superior Court has announced some organizational changes for court departments and the regional court centers.

Mitch Michkowski has been asked to work with the tax court, and to continue his work in the Jury Department. As many of you are aware, the economic downturn has led to an historical increase in the filing for tax cases (160% over the past two years). Presiding Tax Court Judge Fink has drafted several recommendations for the continued improvements of services for the department. While Mitch will be busy with this new assignment, he is also asked to do much in the Jury Office. Efforts are on-going to complete a re-write of the jury system database and planning has been underway to move the jury assembly operations into the new criminal court tower.

Peter Kiefer, who has more than 30 years of experience in caseload management, will now be assigned to the Civil Department. Although never far from department operations while at the regional courts, he looks forward to an assignment that includes caseload management, program development and personnel.

Replacing Peter Kiefer as regional administrator is Danna Quinn. Danna's prior experience in Juvenile Probation operations and close work with the operational management of the departments over the last several years will prove beneficial. While she has attended meetings on personnel, budgeting and general management with the department managers, she has developed a solid knowledge base and desire to explore some new opportunities in this area.

Criminal Court Administration Employee Becomes a U.S. Citizen

On November 18th, Nigerian born Fraser Amali became a U.S. citizen.

Due to the political climate and instability of the educational system in Nigeria, Amali moved to the United States with his family in 2003 to attend school. He was in his fourth year of law school when striking and political unrest from the country's transition from military rule to democracy curtailed his education.

According to Amali, getting an education is very important in his family. Several of his uncles are teachers in Nigeria, and his father has a Ph.D.

When he moved to the United States, he enrolled in Scottsdale Community College. Unfortunately, Amali's college credits did not transfer so he had to start over. At SCC, Amali played on the soccer team for two years; while earning his associates degree. Later, he transferred to Arizona State University and received his graduate and undergraduate degrees.

Prior to starting with Criminal Court Administration in November of 2007, he did an Internship in the Public Defenders Office. He was assigned to a Mitigation Specialist and went to the jails to do interviews with defendants.

Amali plans to apply to law schools next year. When he gets out of law school, he would like to work in the Public Defender's Office.

He says his life consists of work, school and watching football. He is a sports fan and cheers for the Suns and Cardinals.

Court Employees Join Maricopa County Charitable Motorcycle Ride

Recently, Sheila Tickle, David Elston, Ron Pitts and Gary Bridget of Superior Court took part in the first Maricopa County Combined Charitable Campaign's (CCC) Diversity Ride Honoring Veterans.

Twenty-one riders, made up of county employees and Luke Air Force personnel, followed a 176-mile round trip course from Phoenix to Globe, where they enjoyed camaraderie, the outdoors and some of Arizona's most impressive saguaro cactus forests, craggy mountain rock formations and spectacular vistas.

Maricopa County extended invitations to Luke Air Force Base and motorcycle clubs to form a partnership that honors military Veterans.

Superior Court's Gary Bridget played an integral part in planning the event.

"Although we were a small group of 21 riders and about 15 bikes, we managed to raise $340.00 for the CCC," Bridget said. "Next year, we hope to double the contribution to CCC."

The 2011 CCC Motorcycle Diversity Ride is set for Saturday, November 5.

Anyone interested in riding or volunteering for Maricopa County's next motorcycle ride event, may contact Ed Guerrero:602-506-1962 or send him and email at guerreroe@mail.maricopa.gov.

Garfield Turkey Feast – A Huge Success!

The 15th annual Garfield Probation Center Turkey Feast was held on November 18th. This feast is a celebration of the partnership between the probation department, local law enforcement, and the surrounding Garfield community. All residents living in the area were invited to come enjoy good food and a visit from Santa Claus.

The feast consisted of a complete turkey dinner and plenty of desserts. More than five hundred people enjoyed a delicious meal! A gift basket was raffled off and awarded to one of the local residents. We also had a gift basket awarded to one of the many staff volunteers who helped us out. Music was provided courtesy of Manny Barron and was enjoyed by all. Santa Claus put smiles on all the children's faces throughout the day!

This event was made possible as a result of collaboration between many people. Probation staff, their family members, and residents of the Garfield program assisted with set up, serving, crowd control, clean-up, and helping Santa. Several Court staff attended as well and Judge Karen O'Connor helped with clean up after a busy day on the bench. Numerous probation staff attended and worked together to pull off the annual event. It was a team effort and it was much appreciated by everyone who attended!

The Self-Service Center Celebrates 15 Years

This year marks the 15th year anniversary of the Maricopa County Superior Court's Self-Service Center. For its 10th anniversary, the Self-Service Center touted over one million served. In the 15th anniversary, we can make that over 1.4 million served. While the idea of helping self-represented litigants navigate the Court is commonplace now, it was a revolutionary idea in 1995. The Maricopa County Superior Court's Self-Service Center was the trend-setter for the concept of helping self-represented litigants then, and it continues to be a model for this service throughout the country. The Self-Service Center receives requests for tours and information from other Courts on a regular basis.

The landscape of our Self-Service Center has definitely changed since its origination. We have online dynamic or intelligent Family Court legal forms available through eCourt. Our latest project is to transition from having both pdf and Word versions of all the forms on our SSC website to having only a single fillable form format for each form. We look forward to seeing where the Self-Service Center will be for its twentieth anniversary. And, we are shooting for 2 million served in 2015 too! Help us reach our goal by remembering to refer litigants to the Self-Service Center for preprinted legal forms and information.
